Should a player sit on a billiard table?

A player should never sit on a table to make a shot, use the rests. Any adjustment, levelling or repairs should be performed by an experienced billiard table installer. Billiard tables are a great source of entertainment. Drinks should be kept as far away from a table as possible. Spilt food and drink will stain a table's cloth.

Are dirty billiard balls bad?

Dirty billiard balls don't just look unattractive, but they can shorten the lifespan of the balls themselves, the pool felt, and lessens the enjoyment of the game because dirty billiard balls can affect the spin and trajectory of the balls. Dust, grime, oil from handling, and chalk can turn your balls into splotchy messes.

Can billiard balls be polished?

The World Pool-Billiard Association does not allow balls to be polished during tournament play. If you want to polish your billiard balls, never use oil-based polish or wax. Only use billiard ball polish. Oil-based polish causes dirt and dust to cling to the balls. Attracting dust is the exact opposite of what you're hoping to achieve.

How do you keep billiard balls from yellowing?

A pool ball case can help prevent the yellowing of billiard balls from the start. Make sure you store it in a dark and temperature-controlled space. Polishing your balls is an excellent way to restore them and make them look brand new. Polishing usually is not needed for those who use ball cleaners and restorers.

Where should brushing be on a billiard table?

Brushing should be in one direction only, from the end of the table that has the "baulk" line or break line (ref diagram 1). Snooker cloth has what is called "nap". Nap is a term used to denote the direction of a cloth's weave and on a billiard table it points away from the "baulk" cushion.
