Can you get a loan for solar panels?

Some personal loan lenders offer home improvement loans for solar panels with terms of up to 12 years. Solar contractor financing may come with longer terms, such as 15 or 25 years. Choosing a shorter term will save you money on interest. Just make sure you can afford the monthly payments. What Happens If I Default on a Solar Panel Loan?

Is a solar loan a personal loan?

A solar loan is essentially a personal loan, which is a lump sum repaid with fixed payments that include interest, used to purchase solar panels. A solar loan may also refer to other types of solar financing. Are Solar Panel Loans Secured or Unsecured? Whether a loan for solar panels is secured or unsecured depends entirely on the lender.

Are solar panel loans a good idea?

Solar panel loans are generally secured by the panels themselves. This means that if you default, your panels can be repossessed by the loan provider. One thing to keep in mind, though, is that these loans typically come with lower interest rates, so repayment may not be as financially challenging as an unsecured loan.

What is the average interest rate on a solar loan?

The average APR on a 24-month personal loan is 12.49% as of February 2024, according to the Federal Reserve. But you can get solar financing at a lower rate if you have excellent credit or get a loan through your contractor.

How much does a solar loan cost?

Interest rates on solar loans generally range from 4% to 7% but can go up to around 36%. Ultimately, the cost of borrowing depends on several factors, including interest rate, term length and fees. Solar panel loans are typically structured as fixed-rate loans, which means your interest rate will not change over the life of the loan.
